

Brooks was asked "why the Constructive Government Council prefers to remain unidentified?" He replied that he did not think this was the case, pointing out that the name of Dr. Baxter Byerly has been at the end of every CGC ad. He added that the group is composed of "a large number of leading business and professional men which includes members of all parties—Democratic, Republican and Conservative. I think of it as one big, happy, independent group looking for good government."
